The Journal of Blockchain Research (JBR) is a peer-reviewed journal aiming to disseminate leading-edge research and discussions of blockchain technology. Its goal is to publish rigorous, innovative, insightful work of theories and applications related to blockchain technology. In order to facilitate the interdisciplinary nature of the blockchain research, the journal's editorial team includes experts working in several different areas of research.

JBR seeks previously unpublished papers on blockchain-related research with solid grounding in science and engineering, on topics including (but not limited to):

- system design and analysis
- distributed data storage
- security and privacy
- trust and certifications
- mathematics of blockchain
- data science of blockchain
- economics, finance, and social science of blockchain
- manufacturing and blockchain
- cognitive and behavioral science of blockchain
- supply chain and service operations with blockchain
- case studies of blockchain
- review and discussion of blockchain technology's challenges, criticism, and future

JOURNAL OF LAW, TECHNOLOGY & POLICY

@ The University of Illinois

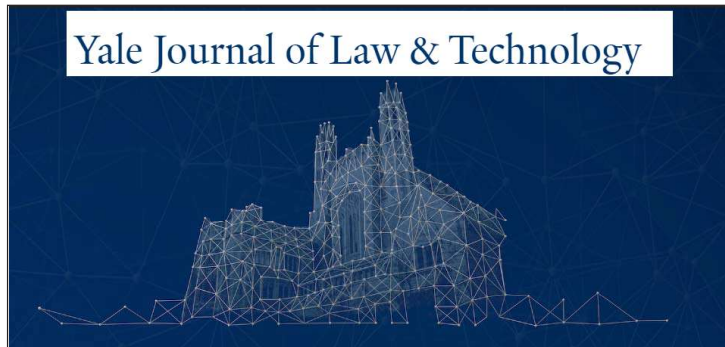

SCRIPTed is a high-quality, open access, interdisciplinary, and multilingual journal of peer-reviewed articles, analysis pieces, case and legislation critiques, as well as commentaries, reports, and book reviews pertaining to law, society, and technologies in the broadest sense.

SCRIPTed's Editorial Board is assisted by an Advisory Board of internationally-renowned experts drawn from the disciplines of intellectual property, information technology, medical law, artificial intelligence, communications law and E-commerce.

As the online journal associated with SCRIPT (the Centre for Research in Intellectual Property and Technology Law, based in the School of Law, University of Edinburgh, and established on 1 April 2002 with generous support from the Arts and Humanities Research Council), SCRIPTed draws on a thriving postgraduate community of students from around the world and benefits from the close ties of that community with the Faculty of Law.
